Wonderful Discovery!

A series of sermons will be preached by the pastor of the Presbyterian Church on "The Seven Churches of Asia," beginning next Sunday evening, based on the book of Revelation and "The Letters to the Seven Churches of Asia," written by Sir Wm. M. Ramsay, LL.D., the greatest living authority on Apostolic Lands, who has spent years of investigation and study in Asia Minor, thru which the British and the Russians are planning to march upon Constantinople, capital of the Turkish Empire. Each sermon will be brief—15 minutes on the church, and 15 minutes on the letter to that church. Practical, simple messages will be given in connection with this great course to which we cordially invite the public. The first for next Sunday is the church of "Ephesus—the city of change." At the morning service the Lord's supper will be administered after a brief sermon by the pastor, at 11 a.
m. At 10 o'clock the S. S. and Men's Bible Class will meet. All welcome.

Mann's Choice Lyceum Course

The first entertainment in the Mann's Choice Lyceum Course will be the Morrow Bros. Male Quartette, Saturday, Oct. 20th. These young men have been trained from infancy in vocal and instrumental music, and have an original and varied program instrumental music, solos, readings and costume character impersonations something for every individual taste.

Fisher—Sodergren.

On Friday of last week, Mr. Ward
Fisher of Clearfield, Pa., and Miss Anna Sodergren of Winburne, Pa., motored to Bedford and called upon Rev. and Mrs. C. R. Allenbach, at the parsonage of Trinity Lutheran Church, and were united in marriage.
The beautiful and impressive ring ceremony was used. Mr. and Mrs.
Fisher are members of Rev. Allen-bachs former charge at Clearfield.
Mrs. Fisher is one of Clearfields well known young ladies being a graduate of the Clearfield hospital training school for nurses, while Mr. Fisher is one of the Penn. Public Service men. While here they were registered at the Fort Bedford, and left Saturday in their car for Washington.

A number of friends of Mr. and their twenty-eighth wedding anniversary. A very pleasant evening was spent by all present.

The members of the Reformed church of Saxton are celebrating the 30th anniversary of the organization of the congregation. Rev. J.
Albert Eyler of St. John's Church, Bedford, preached the sermon at one of the anniversary services on last Tuesday evening.

THE SERVICE FLAG

Side by side with the Stars and Stripes, the Union Jack and the flag of the Allies we see a new flag called the service flag, it is a red flag with an oblong centre of white upon which we find one, two, three and occasionally more blue stars. These blue stars, indicate the number of boys of one family in the service of our government. It is a privilege to be able to hang a service flag over ones' door, showing that household has contributed one or more men to the service of humanity. One of our local townsmen, Mr. Murray Leader proudly displays a service flag bearing three blue stars.

These flags can be purchased at just about cost from the Bedford Branch of the Emergency Aid who will supply any local branches.

The officers of the Bedford County Branch request all branches of the organization to interest members throughout the county in these service flags. It will be an honor to a home to be a possessor of one of these.

The exhibit of surgical dressings and clothing for the Italian, Serbian and French peasants at the booth at the County Fair attracted much attention. The knitted garments interested many and the attendants willingly gave information to persons desiring to knit for the soldiers. A nice sum was realized from the sale of candy.

Liberty Loan Posters were in evidence and the ladies distributed Liberty Loan transparencies to all automobile owners.

A number of registration cards were signed by visitors to the Fair and the reasons for requesting women to register explained to many.

A misunderstanding in regard to the jams and jellies for the Overseas Committee seems to be prevalent.
The Committee requested these jams and jellies to be put into glass jars with screw tops which means either Mason, Ball or any jar with sealed top, in quart, pint or half pint sizes.
Any of these jams and jellies will be received at Emergency Aid Headquarters on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday afternoons of the coming week.

At the business meeting on Tuesday afternoon the Treasurer reported balance of $356.17 in the Navy League Fund, $26.89 in the Company
"L" fund and $914.67 in the Emergency Aid Fund. The expenditures during the past month were Navy League $563.12, Company L $227.75 and Emergency Aid $546.97.

A contribution of $3, balance from a fund raised by Misses Helen Cessna and Catherine Hughes for French Orphans was handed to the Treasurer and placed in Company L fund.

Dear Miss McGirr:

Your letter of September 21st has been received and the package which you shipped arrived on Tuesday, containing 39 garments, including 18 jackets, 28 mufflers, 37 pr. wrist-lets, six helmets, for which we thank you most sincerely.

You no doubt know that the State is now being organized and the Pa.
Division Headquarters are here in this building. Mrs. Moncure Robinson is Chairman for the State and all your communications in the future naturally belong to her.

Anything that I can be of service to you in the future you have only to let me know and I shall be glad to do anything I can for you.

Very sincerely,

2ND. LIBERTY BOND

STATEMENT ON THE SECOND LIB- ERTY LOAN BY Nathan T. Folwell

To those who stay at home it should be not only a pleasure and a privilege, but a duty to subscribe to the New Liberty Loan.

We want to knock out the Kaiser and all his votaries of Prussian Mil-tarism we believe in the doctrine that "might is right"—a sacrilegious set who call on God to help them in their murderous warfare on women and children.

A large subscription to the New Liberty Loan will show the Kaiser that we mean business—that we are a unit and stand back of our President to the fullest extent in prosecuting this war to the finish.

It will give courage to our Soldiers, to our Allies, and even the Russians cannot but help feel that a new light is about to dawn on their dis-tricted country.

Every wage earner should do his bit and bear in mind that it is not charity, but an anchor to windward
—a saving fund for the future.

Statement from Ira W. Barnes, Pres. Ninth National Bank

Every loyal citizen should support the second Liberty Loan. It is an obligation of the richest nation of the world, bearing 4 per cent interest, that is exempt from all local and state taxes and the normal Federal Income Tax.

Our boys are fighting for democracy, which means for home and liberty.
Therefore, they are fighting for all of us who enjoy its benefits.

Our government is the agency through which they are to be equipped and maintained. Our boys are risking their lives for us; we want them to have a fair chance and are going to give it to them by making this second loan a great success.

Our dollars are as patriotic as our sons and we are going to let Uncle Sam have as much money as he needs to help win this war.

We are going to show our alien foes that when duty calls our patriotism knows no limits; that if necessary every drop of blood and every dollar of property will be spent in the defense of our rights and liberties.

Let every one help to make the second Liberty Loan a great success.

Treasury Department,
Bureau of Publicity,
Liberty Loan of 1917.

Washington, D.C., Oct. 5, 1917.

Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall gave out the following statement in regard to the Second Liberty Loan, demanding that the patriotism which manifests itself in honoring the national flag and singing the national anthem and in talk be translated into action by support of the Liberty Loan.

The statement follows:

If we are standing in statecraft for the same things for which the Nazarene stood in religion, then we ought to be able to glean something from the discussion of His followers. Peter and Paul grew acrimonious over the relative merits of faith and works and the discussion ended with the somewhat caustic statement, "Show me your faith without your works and I will show you my faith by my works."

We have been running up the American Flag at all the school houses in America; we have been rising with solemn countenances whenever the Star-Spangled Banner is played and we have been proclaiming to the world our never-ending allegiance to those great principles of Democracy upon which the Republic was founded and is now supposed to rest. Now we have reached the point where our faith is being put to the touchstone of our works and we are soon to find out whether this love which we profess for our institutions, our country, and our flag, is but a sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal or whether it is a great and vital inspiration of individual and national life.

Our young men, with a devotion unexampled in the history of the world, are laying aside all the hopes of future years and are going gladly "somewhere in France" to offer, if need be, the last drop of blood in their veins as a free libation upon the altar of constitutional liberty.
They can not go half-clad, half-fed, unequipped or unassured that they will be properly looked after if disabled.

We did not prepare. We thought there was no danger. And in one year there comes upon us an outlay of extraordinary expense, which

ALTOONAN MARRIES

OSTERBURG GIRL.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at high noon Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George W.
Oster at Osterburg, where their daughter, Olive Lucille was united in marriage to C. Roy Butler of Altoona by Rev. C. G. Bachman, the beautiful ring ceremony of the Reformed church being used. More than one hundred invited guests witnessed the ceremony.

Immediately preceding the ceremony,
Miss Ruth Emily Hope of Philadelphia rendered a beautiful solo entitled "O Promise Me." The wedding march was played by Mrs. Harry C.
Oster of Atlantic City, N. J., during which the bridal party entered the parlor, and was beautifully decorated with ferns and potted plants. The bride was attended by Miss Myrtle V.
Oster of Atlantic City as flower girl;
Miss Charlotte Fetterman of Johnstown as maid of honor and by Miss Irene Butler of Altoona, sister of the groom and Miss Ruth McMullin of Bedford as brides maids.

Mr. John Keatley of Altoona, was the groom's best man.

The bride wore a gown of white chiffon cloth and carried a bridal boquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a gown of canary taffeta and the brides maids delicate pink and blue silk.
The flower girl wore a charming little dress of white china silk and carried a basket of pink roses.

Immediately after the ceremony the guests entered the dining room where a sumptuous wedding dinner was served.

The young couple were recipients of many useful and valuable gifts.
The bride is a prominent young lady of Osterburg. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Butler of Altoona, and is an employee of the P. R. R. Co.
The young couple in company with the bride's brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Oster, motored to Altoona yesterday afternoon in time to catch train No. 27 for a tour through the south, including a visit to the Officer's Training Camp at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., where a brother of the bride is in training, and to New Orleans, La. and other southern cities.

After Nov. 1st the young couple will take up the residence in Altoona in their newly furnished apartment at 21st Avenue and 11th street.

POSTOFFICE HEADQUARTERS

ESTABLISHED AT BEDFORD

A change in the business method of all the Post offices of Bedford except Everett concentrated in the Federal Building at Bedford, Pa.
Beginning with Oct. 1st, 1917 Postmaster Enfield becomes the central accounting P. M. for all the Masters in the Co. except Everett.
Hereafter they will send their quarterly reports to him and he will dish them with all their stock, sta-etc. from the Federal building.

In other words all the transactions, collections and stock, are transferred from Washington to the Bedford Post Office.

This will materially increase the responsibilities and labor of Post Master Enfield and his Assistant Elias Gibson, as they will now have 54 additional accounts to handle and record besides Bedford.

O'NEIL ASKS AID ON ROADS

Commissioner Sends Letters to Boroughs on Improved
Thoroughfares

1500 MILES ARE AFFECTED

Thirty-Nine Boroughs Throughout the State, Many of Them in Western Section, Are Urged to Join in Improvement.

Harrisburg.—Commissioner J. Denay O'Neil, of the state highway department, has sent letters to 39 boroughs throughout the state that are situated on improved state roads, asking the officials if they would be willing to join with the state in improving the state roads that pass through the boroughs. There are about 1,500 miles of state roads in boroughs in the various counties.

Letters were sent to the following Western boroughs: Allegheny county, Springdale and Cheswick; Beaver, College Hill and Homewood; Bedford, Bedford and Everett; Blair, Gaysport, Hollidaysburg, Williamsburg and Duncansville; Center, State College; Clarion, Clarion; Mercer, Mercer and Grove City; Westmoreland, Ligonier, Youngstown and Adamsburg.

Co-Operation by Dairymen.

The state milk commission, which made an investigation of the milk situation in the Pittsburgh district in conjunction with a similar commission named by the governor of Ohio several weeks ago, has made a report to Governor Brumbaugh in which it declares that better results can be obtained by co-operation among the dairy farmers in the section which supplied milk to the city and its numerous surrounding borders. The commission reports the average cost of production in the Pittsburgh district to be 7.45 cents per quart, including freight charges.

Change in Ruling.

State draft headquarters was informed that appeals in extraordinary cases could be taken up by the Adjutant General of Pennsylvania. The original provision was that in special cases or those involving unusual features that the Governor could reopen the cases and present them to boards again. The new order is that the Adjutant General is to be the officer.

Women May Run Elevators.

Women above eighteen years of age may be employed as elevator operators in department stores, apartment houses and elsewhere according to an announcement made by Dr. John Price Jackson, State Commissioner of Labor and Industry, for the State Industrial Board. The matter was formally submitted to the board from several sections of the state and the board held that eighteen years was the minimum legal age for elevator operators, male or female.

According to a Lewistown dispatch, members of Mifflin county will begin around up this week of herds which have been grazing on State forest lands under the permission given by Governor as a war measure. It is a great advantage to many farmers.

Check the Animals.

State Livestock Sanitary Board officials, who have been investigating outbreaks of hog cholera in the Juniata Valley, have issued a warning to farmers and others contemplating buying swine or other cattle at sales to inform themselves as to where the animals come from. Numerous public sales are reported throughout the state and the board veterinarians have urged people to ascertain the condition of hogs especially before buying.

Colonel Beary Appointed Adj. Gen.

Col. Frank D. Beary, of Allentown, deputy adjutant general and acting head of the adjutant general's department since the death of Thomas J. Stewart, was appointed by Gov. Brumbaugh as adjutant general of Pennsylvania. Col. Beary was Gen. Stewart's right-hand man. He rose from the ranks of the Fourth Pennsylvania Infantry and when a major was made deputy adjutant general, the appointment being made in 1912.

Plan to Build Emergency Road.

Commissioner O'Neil agreed with a committee of residents of Blair and Carbon counties to build three miles of emergency road to facilitate movement of coal from mines in that section. There will be three miles added to what is known as the Buckhorn road.

State Police Active.

State policemen have been giving a great aid to the Federal government in rounding up slackers. In some districts in the anthracite field they got four men and put them on trains for Camp Meade. The men arrived, too.

Fines Imposed.

State officials have been insisting upon fines in the suits brought for violation of the child labor law. In many counties men who tried to make short cuts got $50 fines and school children were sent back to books.

There are some varieties such as the Toulouse and the white and brown

Toulouse Geese.

Chinas which are considered quite productive breeds. They lay on an average of about 50 eggs a year, and are very likely to increase their egg production as they grow older.

The customary way of raising geese is to let them shift for themselves to a great extent, and if they have plenty of good grass pasture they do very well. Experience has shown that geese do not do well on a ration consisting largely of grain. Grit is an essential in the diet of the goose, but I doubt the advisability of feeding sour milk to any great extent, as I believe anything which will force egg production would likely have some detrimental effect upon the fertility of the egg.

While grit and oyster shells are essential, they are not usually provided because geese are not confined like chickens, and pick up enough of such material at most any time of the year.

IMPROVEMENT OF EGG YIELD

Crushed Oyster-Shell Food Should Be Kept Before Laying Hens to Secure Good Hard Egg.

The department of agriculture, Washington, recommends that crushed oyster-shell food be kept before laying hens as a means through which a good hard egg is produced. A record kept at the government chicken yard of the amount of oyster shells fed to a laying hen showed that in the year one and three-tenths pound per hen was consumed at a cost of about 1 cent a hen per year.

It is also pointed out that the calcium mineral matter taken in by the young chicken in the feeding of oyster shells may have a tendency to strengthen the frame of the young pullets and make them stronger and healthier in later life. It is further shown from actual experiment that when beef scraps were fed to hens the average egg yield was 137 eggs per hen a year and when beef scraps were not fed 90 eggs was the average yearly yield.

RATIONS FOR LITTLE CHICKS

Bread Crumbs Mixed With Hard-Boiled Eggs, Rolled Oats or Johnny Cake Best at First.

Dry bread crumbs may be mixed with hard-boiled eggs, making about one-fourth of the mixture eggs, or rolled oats may be used in place of the bread crumbs, for young chicks. Feed the bread crumbs, rolled oats, or Johnny cake mixtures five times daily for the first week, then gradually substitute for one or two feeds of the mixture finely cracked grains of equal parts by weight of cracked wheat, finely cracked corn, and oatmeal or hulled oats, to which about 5 per cent of cracked peas or broken rice and 2 per cent of charcoal or millet or rapeseed may be added. A commercial chick feed may be substituted if desired. The above ration can be fed until the chicks are two weeks old, when they should be placed on grain and a dry or wet mash mixture.

KEEPING EGGS FOR HATCHING

Basement Is Satisfactory Place Provided It Is Dry and Free From Injurious Odors.

Eggs held for hatching purposes ought to be kept in a cool place. Such a place as the basement is very satisfactory provided it is dry and free from bad odors. They should be turned every day to prevent the yolk from adhering to the membrane. They should be set as soon as possible and never should be held longer than ten days.

"You can cut down that item and have a better roof

There is no use in putting on an expensive roof when you can get a better roof and save real money by using.

Certain-teed Roofing

CERTAIN-TEED is the best roof, not only because it costs less to manufacture, but also because it is weather-tight, light weight, clean, sanitary, fire-retardant, and costs practically nothing to maintain.

It is now used as the preferable type of roof for office buildings, factories, hotels, stores, warehouses, garages, farm buildings etc., where durability is demanded. CERTAIN-TEED is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to thickness (1, 2 or 3 ply).

There are many roll roofings on the market, but only one CERTAIN-TEED. It pays to get the best. It costs no more to lay a CERTAIN-TEED roof than it does to lay a poor roof, but there is a vast difference in the wear. You can't tell the quality of a roofing by looks or feel. Your only safety is the label. Be sure that it is CERTAIN-TEED—then you are certain of quality and guaranteed satisfaction.

Certain-teed Slate-Surfaced Asphalt Shingles are replacing wood and slate shingles for residences. They cost less, are just as good looking, wear better, won't fall off, buckle or split. They are fire-retardant, and do not have to be painted or stained.

Certain-teed Paints and Varnishes are the best quality paint materials, ground and mixed with mechanical accuracy. Made for all uses and in all colors. With paint, as with roofing, the name CERTAIN-TEED is a guarantee of quality and satisfaction.

A CAUTION TO WAR KNITTERS

Little Talks on Health and Hygiene
by Samuel G. Dixon, M. D. LL. D.
Commissioner of Health

The thousands of women and girls one sees nowadays working with their needles on socks and stockings for the soldiers are doing a patriotic and necessary service, but some of them are doing it wrong. The question of foot covering in extreme winter weather has always been a vexed one with our people. Most of them have seemed to think that if you wore socks or stockings of the heaviest weight wool obtainable, it naturally followed that you were making your feet as comfortable as they could be made in extreme weather. Many of our knitters have the same idea.

This is not so. If you clothe the feet with too heavy covering you are merely providing an over-dressing which will cause perspiration. This perspiration will freeze in extreme temperatures and will give the sensation of cold and discomfort. The wearer will then be tempted to add even more covering, which will aggravate the condition.

Those who have not been exposed to the severe weather of our northernmost climate will perhaps not be able to appreciate this thoroughly. I was a member of the Commodore Peary Committee on his first exploration in Arctic circles. Our idea of the right thing to do was to stock the Kite with plenty of heavy clothing. The result was that many of the men had frozen feet, and the cause was found to be what I have described above. The same thing occurred on our relief expedition, as its members, of course, had had no opportunity of learning the experience of the first party and profiting by it.

The conditions which our own soldiers and those of our allies will have to face next winter will be, judging by the history of the present war's previous winter campaigns, almost as taxing in many instances as those arctic parties have to face. Therefore we must consider carefully what is best for them.

Do not mean to say that socks and stockings and other clothing must not be heavy enough to provide the indispensable warmth, but I believe a word of caution is necessary to those who believe that piling on weight of material is all that is required.

The lesson is just as important for those of us who are at home. Experience has demonstrated that the dressing of the feet and limbs requires the nicest adjustment which will provide warmth but not induce perspiration.

NEWS REVIEW OF THE PAST WEEK

British Again Smash Germans East of Ypres and Capture Important Positions.

ENEMY'S MORALE IS BREAKING

Austria's Warning to the Allies—Repeated Air Raids on London Finally Determine England on Reprisals—America's War Tax Bill Now Law.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Field Marshal Haig began his weekly forward movement as usual on Thursday, the advance being again in the district east of Ypres on a line that seriously threatens Prince Rupprecht's communications with Ostend and Zeebrugge. This salient of the British front has been giving the Germans much anxiety, and all the first part of the week they directed at it curious though futile attacks that proved very costly.

By Saturday the British offensive had developed into one of the most pretentious yet undertaken and promised to result in a victory unequalled since the battle of the Marne. On a nine-mile front Haig's troops rushed forward for about a mile and a half, and gained possession of many German strongholds, including the ridge between Passchendaele and Zonnebeke. Great numbers of Germans surrendered.

The allies doubtless hope to cut in between the submarine bases and the main German army, but according to the belief of well-informed army men, it is not their intention to force the Germans back over any very wide area; because the territory they would be forced to abandon would first be devastated. Rather do the allies plan to demoralize the enemy with the continuous bombardment by guns of all calibers to which they have been subjected them of late, and most of Haig's advances are made for the purpose of gaining possession of commanding positions, from which this terrific gunfire may be directed. That the morale of the German soldiers already is beginning to break down is evidenced by their readiness to surrender and the complaints of some divisions when ordered back to the front after a rest.

Germans Short of Shells.

Reports from the front during the artillery duel that preceded the Thursday advance were that the British fired twenty or more shells for every one that came from the Germans. The allies' supply of munitions is now unlimited, and there is good reason to believe that the Germans are running short of shells and guns, owing partly to reduced productivity caused by the poor food of the workmen, and partly to a shortage of certain metals. The denial of General Schuech, the Kaiser's new minister of munitions, that there is any such shortage, is not convincing. Copenhagen dispatches say the leaders of German labor groups were called to main army headquarters a few days ago, not to celebrate Von Hindenburg's birthday, as was intimated, but to discuss plans for speeding up the production of munitions. Probably it was necessary, also, to take steps to appease the workmen of Essen and their wives, who held a riotous meeting recently, demanding peace and better food.

In Frankfurt, too, an immense peace meeting was held on Sunday, but that was engineered by political groups, and therefore may not have been so indicative of the sentiment of the people.

Czernin Warns the Allies.

In the way of peace movements, the most important event of the week was the speech of Count Czernin, Austro-Hungarian minister of foreign affairs, in which he threatened that unless the allies speedily consented to a peace without annexations or indemnities, Austria-Hungary would revise its program and demand compensation for further costs of war. He said his country had proved that it was perfectly sound and could not be overthrown by force of arms, and consequently was in position simultaneously with its allies to lay aside arms and regulate conflicts by arbitration. Austria-Hungary certainly seems just now to be more united against the idea of a separate peace, despite the feeling of the Croats and other of its peoples, and foreign correspondents warn the United States that neither Bulgaria nor Turkey is likely to separate itself from Germany; they must be whipped together or not at all.

Count Czernin's bold words are scarcely supported by the developments on the Austro-Italian front, for though the Austrians have been hanging on desperately to the edge of the Bainsizza plateau and making repeated attacks to recover lost ground, the Italians have not yielded an inch. There were indications that Cadorna was about ready for a renewal of his offensive, and that the enemy expect this was shown by the rushing westward of large numbers of Austrian and German troops from Bukovina and Roumania.

Kerensky Plan Voted Down.

If only Russia were in condition to take advantage of this troop movement, it might accomplish much. But Russia is still struggling with its internal affairs, and only in the Riga sector are its soldiers showing any disposition to fight. Up there they pushed the Germans back in several places. Meanwhile, Premier Kerensky is having desperate trouble in establishing a firm government. He appeared before the democratic congress, and used very plain, even defiant language, which at first had its effect in a vote approving a coalition cabinet. But next day the Bolsheviks and other extremists gained control of the gathering and voted down the plan. To add to the perplexities of the provisional government, a serious revolt broke out in Turkestan.

The allies are following the lead of America in cutting off supplies from Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Holland, the action determined on being not joint but uniform. Last week Great Britain extended the principle heretofore followed by prohibiting the unlicensed exportation to those countries of all articles except printed matter and personal effects.

Air Raids to Bring Reprisals?

Repeatedly last week the German air fleets raided London and the towns and countryside of Kent and Essex. Flock after flock of great airplanes flew across and dropped their loads of bombs, killing a few civilians and doing some damage to property. Not many of the deadly missiles fell on London, for the anti-aircraft guns put up a barrage fire that ringed the city.

These raids roused the people and press of England to renewed demands for reprisals, and the government seems to be ready at last to yield to the demand, for Premier Lloyd-George said to a crowd of poor people in the southwest district of London who clamored for revenge: "We will give it all back to them, and we will give it to them soon. We shall bomb Germany with compound interest." The Germans themselves are expecting reprisals and are removing to places of safety the art treasures of cities that are believed to be within reach of the British airmen.

The French, less squeamish than the British have been, made reprisal raids on a number of towns last week, including Stuttgart, Baden, Frankfurt and Coblenz. This was in return for the bombing of Dunkirk and Barle-Duc. Though some of the places attacked by the French aviators are open towns, the immediate objectives of the raids were military establishments, and the results were good.

The British merchant vessels sunk by submarines were fewer than in any week since the opening of unrestricted U-boat warfare, but among the victims of the submarines was the British cruiser Drake, which was torpedoed off the Irish coast and sunk in shallow water. One officer and 18 men were killed by the explosion.

Another romantic story of sea warfare comes from Samoa in the exploits of the crew of the German commerce raider Seeadler, after their vessel stranded on a South Pacific island. The master and six others put to sea in a motor schooner armed and provisioned, and the others seized a French schooner, equipped it with guns and bombs and started out again. Since that time they have been preying on merchant vessels.

Curbing the German Press.

The trading with the enemy act went into effect Tuesday and almost immediately Postmaster Burleson barred from the mails the Milwaukee Leader, former Congressman Berger's paper, for seditious and treasonable utterances. Many other publications have been cited by the post office department to show cause why they should not be suppressed, among these being the Illinois Staats-Zeitung.

On Thursday federal agents raided the office of the New Jersey Freie Zeitung in Newark and arrested its two proprietors and three editors on charges of publishing seditious and treasonable articles.

In connection with the trial in Paris of Bolo Pasha, alleged spy, it is revealed that Bolo, who was in the United States for a few weeks early last year, arranged the transfer of at least $1,600,000 of German money through New York banking houses to Paris to further the peace propaganda in France. It is officially stated that there is no doubt of Count von Bernstorff's complicity in the intrigue.

More than one-half of the 163 I. W. W. leaders who were indicted have been arrested and the government is ready to put them on trial.

War Tax Bill Signed.

President Wilson signed the war tax bill Wednesday, and most of its sections became operative at once automatically. It levies for this year more than $2,500,000,000 new taxes for war purposes and in one way or another calls for money from everybody in the country. The two largest sources of revenue will be excess profits, $1,000,000,000, and individual and corporate incomes, $851,000,000.

The soldiers' and sailors' insurance bill, which was passed by the senate, carries an amendment promoting Major General Pershing and Major General Bliss to the rank of general and making all commanders of army corps Lieutenant generals. The bill to repatriate all Americans who have joined the allied military forces also was sent to the president for his signature.

The shipping board gave out a statement last week showing that a large number of vessels are being built and within a few weeks the concrete results of the board's energetic work will begin to slide down the ways in many shipyards. The aircraft building program also is well under way. Secretary Baker stating that 20,000 airplanes and their motors are now under construction.

Liberty Loan Going Well.

Under the competent leadership of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, the campaign for the sale of the second Liberty loan, of $3,000,000,000, started off with a rush, and the enthusiasm and determination of the people made the success of the loan undoubted. There was just one black spot in all the country—the action of Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer of New York and other officials of the National Woman's party in advising women not to assist the loan because they have not been given national suffrage. The Maryland suffragists came back at them with a scathing denunciation, declaring that they had descended to political bribery, had disgraced the name of woman and were "mad sisters of La Follette."

The senate has been flooded with petitions from all parts of the land, from organizations and individuals, asking that Senator La Follette be expelled for his disloyalty and many of the petitioners suggest much severer punishment than mere expulsion. At first the senate committee on privileges and elections was disinclined to take any action at this session, but the universal demand evidently had its effect for on Wednesday the committee began consideration of the petitions.

Progress of Hostilities on All Land Fronts, in the Submarine Zones and in the Air and Battle Field.

WAR BULLETINS

Following the great battle east of Ypres, which complete reports prove was one of the most brilliant and important victories for British arms since the war began, an almost unprecedented calm has settled over the battlefield in Flanders. The British took 4,446 prisoners.

British troops in the renewed drive east of Ypres have pushed forward on a nine mile front, gaining a mile and a half in the center and taking prisoner several thousand Germans, who surrendered by hundreds.

"We shall bomb Germany with compound interest," declared Lloyd George, the British Premier, replying to the appeals of a crowd of poor residents of London for reprisals for recent air attacks on the capital. The crowd cheered the promise.

Four big German cities, one of them Frankfurt-on-the-Main, more than 185 miles from the French border, were bombed by French aviators in the greatest reprisal raid of the war. The other cities visited by the French were Treves, Coblenz and Stuttgart. The last was bombed by French aces.

In the strongest air raid yet attempted by the Germans London was bombarded for two and a half hours.

In their offensive the Italians have captured 2,019 prisoners and repulsed all counter attacks upon the Italian lines on the Bainsizza plateau.

WASHINGTON

The United States probably will declare an embargo on coal exports to certain South American countries in which the public utilities are controlled by Germans.

All persons liable under the new War Revenue law were warned to file their tax returns.

Secretary Baker announced that when the nation's armies move against Germany the "eyes" will be ready in a great and powerful aerial fleet of 20,000 of every type and piloted by daring airmen.

The United States has refused coal to South American vessels bound for European neutrals unless established that their cargoes contain no contraband for Germany.

Representative William E. Mason, Republican of Illinois, in speaking on a question of personal privilege declared in reply to Representative Hatlin's implied charges of treason that the Alabama Democrat had uttered a known untruth. Later the objectionable words were withdrawn.

Action looking toward the expulsion of Mr. La Follette was not expected by leaders in Congress, but the Senate committee which will consider the charges of disloyalty may recommend censure for pacifist members.

The Senate, without a dissenting voice, adopted the war revenue bill conference report, ending a five months' bitter fight. The measure went to the President for his signature. Fixing the price of anthracite coal brought no alleviation to the bituminous coal situation, and many factories dependent on the latter fuel are threatened with a shut-down because of the shortage.

The Senate received more demands from various parts of the country for the impeachment of Senators La Follette, Stone and Gronna. Senator Pomeroy called a committee meeting to consider the protests.

Critics of the shipbuilding program say that vessels under construction are so slow and easily sunk that they are "submarine bait." Vessels capable of sustaining two or even three torpedo shocks are urged.

Dr. Peter W. McReynolds, president of DePance (O.) College, died of his injuries, and his wife was killed outright when their automobile was struck by a train near Curryville.

Investigation of the activities of Bolo Pasha in New York revealed the fact that several great banking houses were duped in the German propaganda work, directed personally by Count von Bernstorff, to bribe newspapers.

Alarmed by growing labor unrest throughout the country, the government sent a commission headed by Secretary Wilson to the West to seek a solution of the problem.

Cotton futures soared to the equivalent of 25 cents a pound for certain options on the Government October report, indicating a reduction of 452,000 bales from the estimate of a month ago.

The United States Supreme Court reconvened.

President Wilson urged upon the Congressional leaders passage of the soldiers' and sailors' insurance bill.

Representative Jeanette Rankin appealed to President Wilson to aid in settling the Butte copper mining strike.

Evidence that large quantities of fats and other import from the United States are being smuggled into Germany on a much larger scale than has been even intimated before, was brought to light. As a result it was stated authoritatively that the ban on exports to Holland and other northern neutrals would be drawn even tighter than in the past.

GERMAN-AMERICAN WAR

Germans plotted early in the war, it is now revealed, to embroil Belgium and the United States by having Belgian soldiers shoot a member of the American Legation.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form.

Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the whole system, and snuffs and vapors do little, if any good.

To correct catarrh you should enrich your blood with the oil-fool in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal food and a building tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it—YOU!

Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation is reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists, 75c.

FIRES ON ITALIAN SHIP BY MISTAKE

U. S. Patrol Boat Kills Two on Submarine

SIMS REPORTS OCCURRENCE

Secretary Daniels Send Message To Italian Ministry of Marine Expressing Regret Over Affair.

Vice Admiral Sims cabled the navy department that an American patrol vessel, on duty at night in the war zone, had fired on an Italian submarine, which failed to answer recognition signals, killing one officer and one enlisted man.

Secretary Daniels at once sent a message to the Italian ministry of marine, expressing the deepest regret over the unfortunate occurrence and tendering his and the American navy's deepest sympathy for the loss of life.

The navy department issued this statement:

"The navy department has been informed by Vice Admiral Sims that recently an American patrol vessel while on patrol duty at night encountered an Italian submarine and that when the latter failed to answer the established recognition signals the patrol vessel opened fire which resulted in the killing of one officer and one enlisted man before the identity of the submarine was established.

"Vice Admiral Sims is thoroughly investigating the unfortunate occurrence and reports will be forwarded later to the department.

"The secretary of the navy upon receipt of the first news dispatched the following message to the Italian minister of marine:

"I have learned with deepest regret of the unfortunate occurrence which resulted in an American patrol vessel firing, through a misunderstanding, upon an Italian submarine, causing the death of one officer and one enlisted man non the latter.

"As our patrol vessels are in European waters primarily for the purpose of co-operating with the Italian and other allied vessels, in our common cause, the unfortunate encounter is all the more regrettable. Due to the recent unusual activity of enemy submarines in this region, which have resulted in the loss of several vessels, the patrol had been strictly maintained and the unfortunate fact that the patrol vessel did not obtain the recognition signals resulted in her opening fire. Please accept on behalf of myself and the American navy sincere and heartfelt sympathy for the loss of life which has resulted.

"JOSEPHUS DANIELS."

Church Knitting Banned.
Harrisburg ministers have come out in formal statements against women taking knitting to church services even though they were engaged in war work. Strong statements on the subject were sent to the newspapers.

ARMY MAN COMMANDS NORTHEASTERN ZONE

GEN. J. A. JOHNSTON, JR.

Brig. Gen. John A. Johnston, Jr., has taken up the duties of his new post as commander of the Northeastern district with headquarters at Boston, succeeding Major General Edwards.

BRIDGE GIVES WAY

Collapse of Structure at Johnstown, Pa., Injures Many.

Fifty persons escaped death in Johnstown, Pa., while witnessing the departure of army draftees, when a wooden approach to a bridge spanning the Conemaugh river swerved to one side, hurling the people over a 10-foot concrete wall to the river bank.

Police records show names of sixteen persons who were injured in the collapse, but owing to the large number who were taken home in private conveyances after the accident, but few names of those hurt were reported to the police.

Witnesses of the accident said that between 150 and 200 persons were crowded on the approach to the bridge when the parade of draftees started. The draftees were marched across a temporary wooden bridge, running parallel to the collapsed structure. Men, women and children, anxious to see the departing soldiers, had gathered several hours before the parade started.

When the line of men began moving across the temporary bridge, the spectators on the approach ran to one side to witness the departure. As the weight increased on one side, the bridge sagged, forming a chute, which sunk about six feet from the bridge level.

SIX AUTOISTS KILLED

Machine Hit By Street Car Near Connellsville, Pa.

Six persons, five members of one family, were killed instantly and three others were injured, one probably fatally, when a Phipps street car, on the West Penn railway, struck a jitney bus at Dogtown crossing, near Juniata, five miles west of Connellsville, Pa.

The bodies of three of the victims were found more than 150 feet from where the accident occurred. The bus was demolished and the street car, which was traveling at terrific speed down a steep grade when the accident occurred, was damaged only slightly.

The dead are Mrs. Rachel Thorpe, thirty-five years old, wife of Frank Thorpe of Bitner; Linnie Thorpe, eighteen, Bitner; Russel Thorpe, sixteen, Bitner; Willard Thorpe, twelve, Bitner; Philip Thorpe, five, Bitner, and Nellie Washington, seventeen, a negress, of Dunbar.

Joseph Thorpe, thirteen, of Bitner, had his skull fractured and was injured internally.

DESTROYERS COLLIDE

American and British Ships Crash In Storm—No Casualties.

An American destroyer in European waters recently was in collision with a British naval vessel, which, after taking off the American crew, towed the disabled destroyer safely to port.

In announcing the collision the navy department said no one was injured aboard the American destroyer and that the vessel since had been repaired and restored to active duty.

An official inquiry developed that the collision was unavoidable, the vessels having come together during a heavy rainstorm. No blame was placed on either the American or the British vessel.

URUGUAY DECIDES TO BREAK WITH GERMANY

South American Country Joins With Allies; To Be Made Base For Fleet. Uruguay's diplomatic break with Germany came after an all-night session of the congress. It was greeted by outbursts of patriotic fervor from the public and press throughout the republic.

The measure adopted by a joint session of the senate and house authorizes President Viera of Uruguay.

To break diplomatic and commercial relations with the German empire. To adopt measures with the friendly nations, and measures to assure importation and exportation.

KEYSTONE PARAGRAPHS

A tower operator's blunder, it is claimed, caused the wreck of the Pennsylvania limited train, eastbound from Chicago, near Beaver Falls in which two trainmen were probably fatally hurt and three other persons were less seriously injured. The train crashed headon into an extra freight. Baseball fans and other passengers among whom were John K. Tener, president of the National league, and Garry Herrmann, chairman of the national commission, were hurled violently from their berths.

A near mutiny among the forty men making up Warren county's contingent in the new army because Leo J. Blair, a wealthy business man, was granted a respite at the last moment while the district board further investigates his case, was quelled an hour before train time by members of the local board, who gave assurance that justice will be done in the case. Several of the men declared they would go to jail before they would leave town unless Blair went with them.

Fourteen members of a towboat crew, including two women, narrowly escaped death by drowning in the Monongahela river, Braddock, when the towboat Twilight, owned by the Rogers Sand company of Pittsburgh was flooded above the deck while traveling at full speed and overturned sinking in eighteen feet of water. After the boat had settled on the river bottom, four feet of the left side remained above water, affording the crew a place of safety.

Pittsburgh soldiers in Europe have been honored, according to letters arriving there from members of the Fifteenth, formerly the Fifth, engineers, recruited in Pittsburgh. They have been chosen to be the first American force to hear the boom of the big guns. Reports have been current here for several days that American troops had left the base camp and were well towards the front, but no verification except that contained in the letters has been received.

With her head beaten in with a hammer, and a small rope and chain, braided together, twisted about her neck, the body of Mrs. Pierino Grecco, sixty-five, was found in the cellar of her home in Pittsburgh. The condition of the body indicated that it had been in the cellar several hours. Joe Grecco, the woman's husband, and several boarders of the Grecco home found the body.

An embargo on all freight coming into Connellsville over the Baltimore and Ohio has been declared because of the strike of B. and O. clerks there. The strike was called several days ago when the company refused to reinstate Edward Cochran, chief clerk to the superintendent here, who had been active in organizing the Order of Railway Clerks' union.

A kitten saved the lives of Mrs. L. E. Isbin, her daughter, Mrs. Sophia McCormick, and the former's mother, Mrs. Samuel Johnson, when their home in South Connellsville was destroyed by fire. The kitten came into the bedroom of Mrs. Isbin and meowed until its noise awakened the occupant. The members of the family fled in their night clothing.

Black Handers made an almost successful attempt to carry out a threat they made two months ago to kill Salvatore Mazarone if he did not pay them $450. A bomb was placed on the step of his shoe repair shop in Pittsburgh, and when it exploded it blew the front of his store into many small pieces. No one was hurt.

The foreign population of Allegheny county is to be brought into the second Liberty loan campaign as one of the big, vital factors in the effort to raise at least $90,000,000. Within the political boundaries of the county more than 45 per cent of the population is either foreign born or of foreign extraction.

Governor Brumbaugh appointed Colonel Frank D. Beary of Allentown adjutant general of Pennsylvania to succeed the late Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart. Colonel Beary served as deputy adjutant general under General Stewart, and has long been identified with the Pennsylvania national guard.

For beating his wife and forcing his daughter to jump out of a second story window, after he had informed the former that she had better order a tombstone and some flowers, William Berrott of Sharpsburg, was given six months in the workhouse.

Back fire in an automobile started a conflagration which wiped out the salesroom, warerooms and garage of Andrew Redmond, in Harrisburg, destroyed nearly fifty cars and caused a loss of approximately $100,000.

The National Steel Alloy company of Erie has signed a contract with the Italian government for $112,600,000 worth of steel alloy to be used in the manufacture of airplanes.

Fire destroyed the Steelton flour mill of the John Hoffer company at Harrisburg, Pa., the largest concern of its kind in central Pennsylvania, together with 30,000 bushels of wheat.

William Potter of Philadelphia was named state fuel administrator for Pennsylvania.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—At the beginning of the world war Capt. Athelstan King of the British Indian army and of its secret service, is ordered to Delhi to meet Yasmini, a beautiful girl, who has been sent to quiet the outlaws there who are by spies to be preparing for a jihad.

CHAPTER II.—On his way to Delhi King quietly follows a plan to assassinate him and gets evidence that Yasmini is his.

CHAPTER III.—In Delhi he is met by a woman, Yasmini's mother, who tells him that the Rangar, her son, has been left to her.

CHAPTER IV.—In Yasmini's house the Rangar is met by a man, who is given to King for a servant.

CHAPTER V.—King rescues some of Yasmini's men and takes them North with him, striking the Rangar into going back to him.

CHAPTER VI.—Rejoined by the Rangar at the mouth of the Khyber pass, King and party start through the pass for Khinjan.

CHAPTER VII.—The Rangar deserts King and Ismail, with three others, in the pass.

CHAPTER VIII.—King sends to his brother at Khinjan, who meets him alone in the pass and with his aid transforms himself into a native hakim, or man of medicine.

CHAPTER IX.—Calling Ismail and the men back to the pass, King and the others, astonished and delighted, meet him in his transformation. Ismail grows friendly and seems, appalled at the thought that Yasmini may love King.

CHAPTER X.—In Khinjan King is taken into the mosque, and Ismail and another, who are already his friends, have slain an Englishman, he is admitted through the mosque wall into the celebrated caves.

CHAPTER XI.—He holds a clinic for the cave's inhabitants, and hears of a hankar by Bull-With-a-Beard's men.

CHAPTER XII.—Next night, Ismail takes him to a vast cave through which an underground river pours. Earth's riches are there, and a human and a thousand of men, among whom he has pointed out of him the mullah Muhammad Anim, or Bull-With-a-Beard.

CHAPTER XIII.—After a wild dance begins the trial of three of the mullah's men, who have gained admission by claiming to have killed an Englishman. Ismail cannot produce the victim's head as proof. Yasmini appears, a lovely vision on a rock bridge above the crowd, and orders the men thrown into Earth's Drink.

CHAPTER XIV.—King, in his disguise as Kurram Khan, is placed on trial, and at the critical moment has a human and a thousand of men, among whom he has pointed out of him the mullah Muhammad Anim, or Bull-With-a-Beard.

CHAPTER XV.—Ismail leads King away, through dark passages to a rock door guarded by ancient curtains with red, glowing lamps before them. He pushes through the curtains. Before him on an ancient bed lie the bodies of a Roman warrior and a Grecian woman, dead 2,000 years, yet perfectly preserved. The woman is the perfect double of Yasmini herself appears and shows King that he is like the dead warrior in every feature.

CHAPTER XVI.—She tells King how she found the Sleepers and used the mystery to control the lawless men of the "Hills." There is gold, there are armaments in the caves. She and King are to take up the Sleepers' work and together conquer India and perhaps the world.

CHAPTER XVII.—She uses every effort to bend King to her will and at last succeeds. He agrees to let her lead him, telling that King has turned traitor. They go back again to the Sleepers and at last she mesmerizes and leaves King asleep.

CHAPTER XVIII.—King wakes in another cave. The mullah captures him and carries him to his own cave outside Khinjan. On the way King commences to gather men to him by promises of pardon. The mullah is rebellious against Yasmini.

CHAPTER XIX.—The mullah tells King that he and Yasmini shall have India, but he, the mullah, will be the real power behind them. King must write to her to make terms or he will storm the caves.

CHAPTER XX.—King writes to her explaining the situation and promises her pardon if she will return to India with him. Rewa Gunga steals into the camp at night and tries to kill King.

CHAPTER XXI.—Ismail comes into camp as a blind man and pretends that King restores his sight. Yasmini sends the mullah word that she will meet with him in the cavern of Earth's Drink. King organizes his force of deserters and steals away from the mullah on the way to the caves.

CHAPTER XXII.—The mullah and his forces enter the caves. Rewa Gunga comes alone to King and as he arrives the caves are blown up, and the mullah is buried in them. "That is a woman can do for a man," says the Rangar, and rides away.

CHAPTER XXIII.—King marches his force down to Jamrud, where Rewa Gunga has been arrested. To find out what has become of Yasmini King interviews the Rangar in a cell and there are those who say that Rewa Gunga and Yasmini were one and the same person.

KING-OF-THE-KHYBER RIFLES

A Romance of Adventure

By TALBOT MUNDY

CHAPTER I.

The men who govern India—more power to them and her—are few. Those who stand in their way and pretend to help them with a flood of words are a host. The charge has been the light in print that India—well-spring of plague and sudden death and money lenders—has sold her soul to twenty succeeding conquerors in turn.

So when the world war broke the world was destined to be surprised on India's account. The Red sea, full of racing transports crowded with dark-skinned gentlemen, whose one prayer was that the war might not be over before they should have struck a blow for Britain, was the Indian army's answer to the press.

More than one nation was deeply shocked by India's answer to "practices" that had extended over years. But there were men in India who learned to love India long ago, with that love that casts out fear, who knew exactly what was going to happen and could therefore afford to wait for orders instead of running round in rings.

Athelstan King, for instance, nothing yet but a captain unattached, sat in meagerly furnished quarters with his heels on a table. He is not a doctor, yet he read a book on surgery; and when he went over to the club he carried the book under his arm, and continued to read it there.

In the other room where the telegraph blinks were littered in confusion all about the floor, the other officers sent telegrams and forgot King, who sat and smoked and read about surgery; and before he had nearly finished one box of cheroots a general at Peshawur wiped a bald red skull and sent him an urgent telegram.

"Come at Once," It Said.

"Come at once!" It said simply. King was at Lahore, but miles don't matter when the dogs of war are loosed. The right man goes to the right place at the exact right time then, and the fool goes to the wall. In that one respect war is better than some kinds of peace.

In the train on the way to Peshawur he was not troubled by forced conversation. Consequently he reached Peshawur comfortable, in spite of the heat. And his genial manner of saluting the full-general who met him with a dogcart at Peshawur station was something scandalous. Full-generals, particularly in the early days of war, do not drive to the station to meet captains very often; yet King climbed into the dogcart unexcitedly, after keeping the general waiting while he checked a trunk!

The general cracked his whip without any other comment than a smile. A blood mare tore sparks out of the macadam, and a dusty military road began to ribbon out between the wheels. Sentries in unexpected places announced themselves with a ring of shaken steels as their rifles came to the "present," which courtesies the general noticed with a raised whip.

On the dogcart's high front seat, staring straight ahead of him between the horse's ears, King listened. The general did nearly all the talking.

"The North's the danger," King grunted with the lids half-lowered over full, dark eyes. He did not look especially handsome in that attitude. Some men swear he looks like a Roman, and others liken him to a gargoyle, all of them choosing to ignore the smile that can transform his whole face instantly.

"We're denuding India of troops—not keeping back more than a mere handful to hold the tribes in check," King nodded. There has never been peace along the northwest border. It did not need vision to foresee trouble from that quarter. In fact it must have been partly on the strength of some of King's reports that the general was planning now.

"Well, the tribes'll know presently how many men we're sending overseas. There've been rumors about Khinjan by the hundred lately. They're cooking something. Can you imagine 'em how many men we're sending overseas. There've been rumors about Khinjan by the hundred lately. They're cooking something. Can you imagine 'em

"That depends, sir. Yes, I can imagine it."

The general laughed. "That's why I sent for you. I need a man with imagination! There's a woman you've got to work with on this occasion, who can imagine a shade or two too much. What's worse, she's ambitious. So I chose you to work with her."

King's lips stiffened under his mustache, and the corners of his eyes wrinkled into crow's feet to correspond. Eyes are never coal-black, of course, but his looked it at that minute.

"You know we've sent men to Khinjan who are said to have entered the caves. Not one of 'em has ever returned."

King frowned.

"She claims she can enter the caves and come out again at pleasure. She has offered to do it, and I have accepted. Can you guess who she is?"

"Not Yasmini!" King hazarded, and the general nodded. The helmet-strap mark, printed indelibly on King's jaw and cheek by the Indian sun, tightened and grew whiter—as the general noted out of the corner of his eye.

"Know her?"

"Know of her, of course, sir. Everybody does. Never met her to my knowledge."

"Um-in-m! Whose fault was that? Somebody ought to have seen to that. Go to Delhi now and meet her. I'll send her a wire to say you're coming. She knows I've chosen you. She tried to insist on full discretion, but I overruled her."

King's tongue flicked his lips, and his eyes wrinkled. The general's voice became the least shade more authoritative.

"When you see her, get a pass from her that'll take you into Khinjan caves! Ask her for it! For the sake of appearances I'll gazette you seconded to the Khyber rifles. For the sake of success, get a pass from her!"

"Very well, sir."

"You've a brother in the Khyber rifles, haven't you? Was it you or your brother who visited Khinjan once and sent in a report?"

"I did, sir."

He spoke without pride. Even the brigade of British-Indian cavalry that went to Khinjan on the strength of his report and leveled its defenses with the ground, had not been able to find the famous caves. Yet the caves themselves are a byword.

"There's talk of a jihad (holy war). There's worse than that! When you went to Khinjan, what was your chief object?"

"To find the source of the everlasting rumors about the so-called 'Heart of the Hills,' sir."

"Yes, yes. I remember. I read your report. You didn't find anything, did you? Well. The story is now that the 'Heart of the Hills' has come to life. So the spies say."

King whistled softly.

"There's no guessing what it means," said the general. "Go and work with Yasmini. The spies keep bringing in rumors of ten thousand men in Khinjan caves, and of another large lahar not far away from Khinjan. There must be no jihad, King! India is all but defenseless! This story about a 'Heart of the Hills' coming to life may presage unity of action and a holy war such as the world has not seen. Go up there and stop it if you can. At least, let me know the facts."

King grunted. To stop a holy war single handed would be rather like stopping the wind—possibly easy enough, if one knew the way. Yet he knew no general would throw away a man like himself on a useless venture. He began to look happy.

The general clucked to the mare and one wheel ceased to touch the gravel as they whirled along a semi-circular drive. Under the porch of a pretentious residence, sentries saluted, the sails swung down and in less than sixty seconds King was following the general through a wide entrance into a crowded hall. The instant the general's fat figure darkened the doorway twenty men of higher rank than King, native and English, rose from lined-up chairs and pressed forward.

"Sorry—have to keep you all waiting—busy!" He waved them aside with a little apologetic gesture. "Come in here, King."

King followed him through a door that slammed tight behind him on rubber jambs.

"Sit down!"

The general unlocked a steel drawer and began to rummage among the papers in it. In a minute he produced a package, bound in rubber bands, with a faded photograph face upward on the top.

"That's the woman! How do you like the look of her?"

King took the package and for a minute stared hard at the likeness of a woman whose fame has traveled up and down India, until her witchery has become a proverb. She was dressed as a dancing woman, yet very few dancing women could afford to be dressed as she was.

The general watched his face with eyes that missed nothing.

"Remember—I said work with her!" King looked up and nodded.

"They say she's three parts Russian," said the general. "To my knowledge she speaks Russian like a native, and about twenty other tongues as well, including English. She was the girl widow of a rascally hill rajah. I've heard she loved her rajah. And

"That's the Woman! How Do You Like the Look of Her?"

I've heard she didn't! There's another story that she poisoned him. I know she got away with his money—and that's proof enough of brains! Some say she's a she-devil. I think that's an exaggeration, but bear in mind she's dangerous!"

King grinned. A man who trusts Eastern women over readily does not rise far in the secret service.

"If you've got nous enough to keep on her soft side and use her—not let her use you—you can keep the 'Hills' quiet and the Khyber safe! If you can contrive that—now—in this pinch—there's no limit for you! Commander in chief shall be your job before you're sixty!"

King pocketed the photograph and papers. "I'm well enough content, sir, as things are," he said quietly.

The general paced once across the room and once back again, with hands behind him. Then he stopped in front of King.

"No man in India has a stiffer task than you have now! A jihad launched from the 'Hills' would mean anarchy in the plains. That would entail sending back from France an army that can't be spared. There must be no jihad, King! There must—not—be one! Keep that in your head!"

"What arrangements have been made with her, sir?"

"Practically none! She's watching the spies in Delhi, but they're likely to break for the 'Hills' any minute. Then they'll be arrested. When that happens the fate of India may be in your hands and hers! Get out of my way now, until tiffin-time!"

In a way that some men never learn, King proceeded to efface himself entirely among the crowd in the hall, contriving to say nothing of any account to anybody until the great gong boomed and the general led them all in to his long dining table. Yet he did not look furtive or secretive. Nobody noticed him, and he noticed everybody. There is nothing whatever secretive about that.

The fare was plain, and the meal a perfunctory affair. The general and his guests were there for no other reason than to eat food, and only the man who happened to seat himself next to King—a major by the name of Hyde—spoke to him at all.

"Why aren't you with your regiment?" he asked.

"Because the general asked me to lunch, sir!"

"I suppose you've been pestering him for an appointment?"

King, with his mouth full of curry, did not answer, but his eyes smiled.

After lunch he was closeted with the general again for twenty minutes. Then one of the general's carriages took him to the station; and it did not appear to trouble him at all that the other occupant of the carriage was the self-same Major Hyde who had sat next him at lunch. In fact, he smiled so pleasantly that Hyde grew exasperated. Neither of them spoke. At the station Hyde lost his temper openly, and King left him abusing an unhappy native servant.

The station was crammed to suffocation by a crowd that roared and withered and smelt to high heaven. But the general himself had telephoned for King's reservation, so he took his time. There were din and stink and dust beneath a savage sun, shaken into reverberations by the scream of an engine's safety valve. It was India in essence and awake!—India arising out of lethargy!—India as she is more often nowadays—and it made King, for the time being of the Khyber rifles, happier than some other men can be in ballrooms.

Any one who watched him—and there was at least one man who did—must have noticed his strange ability, almost like that of water, to reach the point he aimed for, through, and not around, the crowd.

He neither shivered nor argued. Orders and blows would have been equally useless, for had it tried the crowd could not have obeyed, and it was in no mind to try. Without the least apparent effort he arrived—and there is no other word that quite describes it—arrived. He climbed into his carriage and leaned from the window.

"Why are you here?" asked an acid voice behind him; and without troubling to turn his head, he knew that Major Hyde was to be his carriage mate again.

"Orders," said King.

"Is that your answer?" asked the major. Baked ambition is an ugly horse to ride. He had tried for a command but had been shelved.

"I have sufficient authority," said King, unruffled. He spoke as if he were thinking of something entirely different. His eyes were as if they saw the major from a very long way off and rather approved of him on the whole.

"Show me your authority, please!" King dived into an inner pocket and produced a card that had about ten words written on its face, above a general's signature. Hyde read it and passed it back.

"So you're one of those, are you?" he said in a tone of voice that would start a fight in some parts of the world and in some services. But King nodded cheerfully, and that annoyed the major more than ever; he snorted, closed his mouth with a snap and turned to rearrange the sheet and pillow on his berth.

CHAPTER II.

The train pulled out, amid a din of voices from the left-behind that nearly drowned the panting of the overloaded engine. Hyde alit but stripped himself and drew on striped pajamas. King was content to lie in shirt sleeves on the other berth, with knees raised, so that Hyde could not overlook the general's papers. At his ease he studied them one by one, memorizing a string of names, with details as to their owners' antecedents and probable present whereabouts. There were several photographs in the packet, and he studied them very carefully indeed.

But much most carefully of all he examined Yasmini's portrait, returning to it again and again. He reached the conclusion in the end that when it was taken she had been cunningly disguised.

"This was intended for purpose of identification at a given time and place," he told himself.

"Were you muttering at me?" asked Hyde.

"No sir. Nothing of the sort intended."

Hyde turned an indignant back on him, and King studied the back as if he found it interesting. On the whole he looked sympathetic, so it was as well that Hyde did not look around. Baked ambition as a rule loathes sympathy.

After many prickly-hot, interminable, jolting hours the train drew up at Rawal-Pindi station. Instantly King was on his feet with his tunic on, and he was out on the blazing hot platform before the train's motion had quite ceased.

He began to walk up and down, not elbowing but percolating through the crowd, missing nothing worth noticing in all the hot kaleidoscope and seeming to find new amusement at every turn. It was not in the least astonishing that a well-dressed native should address him presently, for he looked genial enough to be asked to hold a baby. King himself did not seem surprised at all. Far from it; he looked pleased.

"Excuse me, sir," said the man in glib babu English. "I am seeking Captain King sahib, for whom my brother is very anxious to be servant. Can you kindly tell me, sir, where I could find Captain King sahib?"

"Certainly," King answered him. He looked glad to be of help. "Are you traveling on this train?"

The question sounded like politeness welling from the lips of unsuspicion.

"Yes, sir, I am traveling from this place where I have spent a few days, to Bombay, where my business is."

"How did you know King sahib is on the train?" King asked him, smiling so genially that even the police could not have charged him with more than curiosity.

"By telegram, sir. My brother had the misfortune to miss Captain King sahib at Peshawur and therefore sent a telegram to me asking me to do what I can at an interview."

"I see," said King. "I see." And judging by the sparkle in his eyes as he looked away, he could see a lot. But the native could not see his eyes at that instant, although he tried to.

He looked back at the train, giving the man a good chance to study his face in profile.

"See that carriage?" he asked, pointing. "The fourth first-class carriage from the end? Well—there are only two of us in there; I'm Major Hyde, and the other is Captain King. I'll tell Captain King to look out for you."

"Oh, thank you, sir!" said the native obligingly. "You are most kind! I am your humble servant, sir!"

King nodded good-by to him, his dark eyes in the shadow of the khaki helmet seeming scarcely interested any longer. "Couldn't you find another berth?" Hyde asked him angrily when he stepped back into the compartment. "What were you out there looking for?"

King smiled back at him blandly.

"I think there are railway thieves on the train," he announced without any effort at relevance. He might not have heard the question.

Hyde snorted and returned to his seat in the silence of unspeakable scorn. But presently he opened a suitcase and drew out a repeating pistol which he cocked carefully and stowed beneath his pillow; not at all a contemptible move, because the Indian railway thief is the most resourceful specialist in the world. But King took no overt precautions of any kind.

After more interminable hours night shut down on them, red-hot, black-dark, mesmerically subdivided into seconds by the thump of carriage wheels and

STELL WORKER GETS RELIEF AT ONCE

Neither Ate Nor Slept For Five Nights Prior To Using The Modern Remedy

NOW LOUD IN HIS PRAISES

To the Manufacturers of 20th Century Liniment:

Gentlemen:—

Allow me please, to thank you for the wonderful effects produced on me by your Liniment. I am a steel worker, employed in the Scranton Bolt and Nut Works, and for those who know the occupation of Puddling Iron, there is no need of my saying that to catch cold means something more serious, my slight cold developed into Inflammatory Rheumatism, and for three months could not move hand or foot, and even the weight of a light counterpane caused me excruciating pains, my knees were swollen so badly that I thought they would burst. For five days and nights prior to using 20th Century Liniment, I neither ate or slept. I doctored with my local physician for two months with no relief whatever. A friend of my father (name on application) had some of your liniment, and after much persuasion I allowed him to apply some of it to my limbs. The first touch was a torture as I expected, but after five minutes I felt the first relief from pain in three months. That night I slept from 10:30 p. m. till 6:30 a. m. and awoke without a pain. I ate the first I had eaten in five days. After a week of treatment with the Liniment I am up and around, I am going on a week's vacation, and will go to work when I return. If anyone suffering with rheumatism feels in any way doubtful as to the merits of 20th CENTURY LINIMENT, have them write me, and I will dispell any doubts they may have. I can't recommend it too highly and hereafter will never be without it.

This letter is unsolicited and is a way of trying to express my appreciation.

Again thanking you, and wishing you every success, I beg to remain, Sincerely and respectfully,

THOS. A. CAVENEY

Rueben Plank, a husky Yank, came into town one day

And said "Sakes Alive," I really must subscribe, by heck

I'll help to get that Kaiser Bill hear so much about

He gave a check with another by heck and started in to shout

Chorus
Three Billion is what we are af Uncle Sam has lots to pay, Over the sea, for you and me So buy with a hip hooray Lend him your dollars for freedom With some real live Yankee hep, Buy a Liberty Bond from your Country And we'll crush the Huns by Heck! By Heck.

Rueben Plank then joined the ranks, to fight as well as pay Then he soon went ahead, he's Corporal Plank instead, By Heck! His squad is now in action, they are fighting with a will, They are across, you come across to down old Kaiser Bill.

YOUR KIDNEYS

Bedford Residents Must Learn The Importance of Keeping Them Well

Perfect health means that every organ of the body is performing its function properly.

Perfect health cannot be enjoyed if the kidneys are weak and disordered.

Thousands testify that Doan's Kidney Pills have a reviving action on weak kidneys.

What this remedy has done in so many cases of this kind is the best proof of its merit.

Read the following: It's testimony gratefully given by a resident of this locality:

John S. Baker, retired farmer, W. Main St., Everett, Pa., says: "My kidneys acted much too freely when I was around on my feet during the day. A dull ache settled in the small of my back and seemed to go clear up to my shoulder blades. Doan's Kidney Pills regulated the passage of the kidneys' secretions and removed the aching from my back."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Baker had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. April 27, 21.
